WEATHER FORECAST.—Thursday showers.

2,900 Yards New Embroideries, 121-2c, 19c, 25c, 39c, 50c Yard,
Which is Just Half and Less of Their Value.

Nainsook, and Swiss Edges and Insertions—one inch to twenty-seven inches wide—most of them match sets.

We bought the entire lot last week at a bargain. The cloth is exceptionally sheer and the stitching something far beyond the ordinary. Very few stores could afford to buy these goods at regular prices as their cost would make them prohibitive.

We have been told that the greatest Embroidery bargains ever seen in Richmond, have been offered by us this spring and summer. To-day's specials will more than sustain this reputation.

Statement From Lawrence.

Concerning the charge of kidnapping Bernard Elam, of Manchester, Richard Lawrence, the accused man, stated that Elam climbed on the fourth wagon proceeding to the depot, and that he repeatedly ordered the boy to get off. Elam appeared carrying his coat and shoes and stockings in his hand, and was told by Lawrence several times to put them on.

Lawrence says that the driver and his assistant were in the wagon with him at the time, and declares further that the idea of kidnapping is utterly absurd, as, under the circumstances, it would have been impossible.

After reaching the depot, Lawrence ordered the boy to get on, but Elam persisted and boarded the train. After Elam again until their arrival in Peetisbury. Here Lawrence ordered the lad again to go home, and ordered the lad again to go home, and the latter started on foot, but was picked up by a friend.

The Kidnapping Again.

The shadow of mystery which surrounded the alleged kidnapping of Bernard Elam, the fourteen-year-old son of W. J. Elam, by Richard Lawrence, a driver of the circus which recently visited this city, is fast being cleared up by late developments of the investigation into the affair.

There is more and more doubt expressed as to the boy's statement of the story, for the belief is untenable that in the broad light of day and before a large crowd he could have been picked up, dragged a long distance, and then placed in a wagon and driven to the circus grounds.

GIRLS SHOULD WED WHILE YET YOUNG

Physicians Say Higher Education Unfits Them for Matrimony and Duties of Life.

"I am opposed to the highly developed intellect of girls, as now seems to be a American nation," said Dr. A. Laphorne
American nation," said Dr. A. Laphorne Smith, of Bishop College, Montreal, at the of the University of Vermont, this evening, in discussing his paper in which he assailed the present day methods of educating girls.

"It unfits them for married life, is prone to make them unhappy because it makes them over-sensitive and generally fails to give the results which were claimed for education for females.

"It is my observation that men marry late in life because women have been crowding them out of positions. Women marry late because they find they can support themselves and are unwilling to undertake the responsibilities of motherhood. Then again they are made physically weaker through their training.

"Overstudy saps their vitality. It is study day and night, and in addition there are social duties and music and dancing lessons. I cannot see the use of over-educating the girls, which makes them dissatisfied and in the more important feature gives them an education which is of no practical value to them in life.

"I can see the use of a liberal education in the study of Greek, algebra and psychology, and let them have more hours of recreation. They should be sound and healthy in their youth and ready to become wives when 15 instead of 20.

"Canada and New England 1 find the young people marrying later and later in life, the men at 40 and the women at 20.

"I am sustained in my position by the history of our grandparents. They were healthier and happier than we are. Our grandchildren will be still earlier married.
Earlier marriages will make healthier children. It will strengthen the republic in stronger humanity.

"The older the sexes when they marry the more difficult it is to get them getting along together smoothly in life. They have become set in their ways and will not merge into that condition of love and affection which is to be observed in early

life, the men at 40 and the women at 20.

"I am sustained in my position by the
healthier and happier than we are. Our
Earlier marriages will make healthier
in stronger humanity.

not merge into that condition of love and
marriages. I can see the use of a liberal psychology, and let them have more hours

come wives when 15 instead of 20.
